NCC Conservation Speaker Series invites you and your guests to

Resolving human-bear conflict
With Jay Honeyman

Jay Honeyman has been working with grizzly bears for over 25 years and received his MSc in Environmental Management from Royal Roads University in 2007. He has worked with the Wind River Bear Institute assisting agencies in various provincial, state and federal government agencies in resolving their human bear conflict issues. He is the Executive Director of Bear Conflict Solutions Inc. (formerly known as the Karelian Bear Shepherding Institute of Canada), a federal not-for-profit organization whose focus is research and education into issues surrounding human bear conflict. He currently works as a Bear Conflict Biologist for Alberta Sustainable Resource Development in Canmore.
